messagefromthedirector

When Archie Bray, Sr., Peter Meloy, and Branson Stevenson founded the Bray 60 years ago, it was the beginning of a bold experiment. As I look over the list of the many artists and friends who supported the Bray in 2010, I am reminded of the continuing power of that experiment—and of our responsibility to it.

During 2010 we completed installation of seven new commercial gas kilns designed to help us to reduce energy costs and to ensure that the Bray continues to provide resident artists access to the most comprehensive firing facilities possible. We have installed individual gas meters to gather data from our firings and have found the new kilns will reduce energy between 50 to 66% over older kilns of comparable size.

Perhaps more important than the fuel savings has been the variety of firing options that the new kilns provide. Our resident artists have already begun taking advantage of the improved facilities and, while it is satisfying to be more energy efficient, it is thrilling to watch the residents respond to new possibilities. Our new 110-cubic-foot sculpture kiln is getting a workout as the sculptors now have the opportunity to make and fire larger work.

It was great fun to have a group from the Oakland Museum of Art here for three days over the Brickyard Bash weekend at the end of July. They toured studios in the area, visited the Gates of the Mountains, and added tremendous spirit to the Bash festivities. We made many new friends, some of whom we will be seeing again this summer for our anniversary gathering.

The steering committee for the Bray's 60th anniversary celebration met regularly throughout 2010 to refine the program and solicit support. The response from the foundation community has been enormously gratifying. The Windgate Foundation, the National Endowment for the Arts, the Paul G. Allen Family Foundation, and the Jerry Metcalf Foundation all are helping to underwrite the event.

In November were able to highlight the 60th anniversary at SOFA Chicago. SOFA provided the Bray with a complimentary space in the exposition hall and we presented an exhibition of work by the current residents and artists demonstrating at the 60th anniversary event. I also gave a talk about the Bray and the upcoming event as part of the SOFA lecture series.

The event, 2011: From the Center to the Edge—60 years of Creativity and Innovation at the Archie Bray Foundation, will be an exciting time to reflect on the longevity and growth of the Bray. It will also be an opportunity to look toward the future and our responsibility to continue Archie's vision. We hope to see many of you in June when we will celebrate with the community whose support means so much to our success.
